BETWEEN YOU AND ME

by Stanley Orris

One of the silliest remarks to come our way for a long time was the one we heard this week when someone said: "The sole object of forming a Board of Trade in Champion is to run the village council out of town." We realize this remark is so juvenile as to not require comment. Our only object in repeating it here is to bear out what we said last week in an editorial about petty suspicions and backbiting being ridiculous.

That the Board of Trade can be of benefit to the community is an idea held by the business men of the village is evidenced by the fact that within a few days of deciding to organize such a body all the business men of the village, with the exception of three establishments on main street have taken out membership in the Board. It is hoped that before another meeting there will be 100 per cent support of the Board.

A considerable number of farmers too, have taken out membership in the Board, and more are joining almost every day. They appreciate the fact that the Board will offer them to meet with their fellow farmers to discuss with some authority the problems which from time to time arise in the management of their business which is farming.

A strong united representation of business men and farmers can do much for this district and community. The cost of a membership in the Board of Trade is only one dollar a year. The benefits accruing from membership will many many times repay the membership fee. The sole objects of the Board are to provide an organization where the members can discuss the problems they find in their business, whether they be merchants or farmers, and also an organization where they can unite to develop projects which will be for the good of the village and district.

Orchids and farewell this week to Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Wellman, who are leaving to make their home in another district. The community is very sorry to lose them. They have been good farmers, good neighbors and good friends. We wish them much success and happiness in the new home.

Judge: Do you wish to challenge any of the jury?
Defendant: Well, I think I could lick that little squirt on the end.

See You Next Week.

LADIES' AID SPONSOR ST. PATRICK'S CONCERT

v-v-v

Campbell's hall was filled to capacity Tuesday evening when the Ladies' Aid of the United Church staged a very delightful Irish concert.

After witnessing the many fine performances of the numerous contributors to the program we found ourselves wondering why there is not more of this type of entertainment put on for the benefit of the community. That those who were there, and they were many, enjoyed the offerings was evidenced by the hearty applause and demands for encores. There is certainly a wealth of talent in the district and it should be given more opportunity to display itself.

The singing of O Canada opened the evening's entertainment. The first number of the program was a selection by the Junior Choir, conducted by Shirley Taylor. Miss Morag McDougall followed with a delightful solo. Students from the Champion High School put on a short play which was much appreciated. Mr. George Rhodes followed with a vocal solo. One of the high spots of the evening was the quartette of four men composed of Geo. Campbell, Percy Gatenby, Geo. Rhodes, and Geo. Orr. Their rendition of some of the old favorites was very acceptable to the audience. Dorothy Hummell, Marjorie Ditto and Shirley Taylor sang two very delightful numbers. Their voices blend and harmonize so well, and the songs they chose were ones that enabled them to give their best. We would certainly appreciate hearing this trio on future occasions.

Miss Ann Lee and Mr. McRae executed a very difficult step dance which intrigued the audience and they were called back for an encore. Miss Doreen Stewart gave a display of club swinging in a very efficient manner. A novelty number of two cowboy songs was presented by Miss McGaw and her brother Gordon McGaw. They sang there as a duet with Gordon accompanying on the guitar.

A break in the program was made when Professor Franklin Cool conducted a spelling match. The winners receiving a war saving stamp each.

During the evening the two towels donated by Mrs. S'pas to the Red Cross and raffled for them by the Royal Purple were drawn for.

The winners of the towels were Mr. D. D. Farmer and Mr. Buddy Weiss. There were three hundred tickets sold.

The program continued with a very fine duet rendered by the Ashmore sisters. Two readings, which were very much appreciated by the audience, were given by Mrs. Morrison. Miss McLean from Harmony school gave two very lovely solos displaying a well trained voice, with fine control and modulation.

The program was rounded out by two choruses one from the Harmony school under the direction of Miss McLean and the other by the students of grades seven and eight of the Champion school, under the direction of Miss Ann Ellis. Both choruses showed excellent training and their songs were well chosen.

Mr. Campbell on behalf of the Ladies' Aid thanked all those who contributed their talent to the success of the evening and also those of the audience for attending.

Geo. Campbell handled the duties of Master of Ceremonies in his usual inimitable manner. The evening closed by the singing of God Save the King.

FAREWELL TO MR. AND MRS. R. H. WELLMAN

On Wednesday evening the people of Champion and district gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Wellman to say farewell to this very popular family on the eve of their departure to take up residence at Queenstown, Alberta.

There were between seventy-five and eighty people present on this occasion. The evening was spent in playing games. There was a short program of musical selections. Mr. Sidney Lindstedt acted as Master of Ceremonies.

Mr. and Mrs. Wellman were presented with a very beautiful mantel clock a gift which was a token of the esteem in which they are held in the district. Miss Ruth Warren made the presentation and in a very well chosen manner conveyed to Mr. and Mrs. Warren the regret which the community felt in their leaving and at the same time wishing them all happiness and success in their new location.

C.H.S. NEWS

Marjorie Ditto came home from Calgary where she has been receiving leg treatments.

We perceive that all the pupils in the High School are wearing black as if in mourning. Could it be that they also saw in the paper where Mr. Lindstedt is going to throw off the cloak of bachelorhood and put on the tie of matrimony. He must have seen that sign down town which said "Choose Your Bonds".

A week ago Saturday D. A. Swanson and Maurice Weiss went to Calgary on Buddie's motorcycle. They reported only two spills. The pupils in the grades 9 and 12 room are wondering what they will have in the grade 10 and 11 room next. When we got to school on Monday morning we saw that they had 6 goldfish, 5 snakes and very many sea plants. One turtle is on its way. The idea is to make a balanced aquarium.

Mr. A. Townsend of Calgary was a week-end guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Clever.

Miss Yvonne Griffin was home for a few days last week. She has left to take up teaching duties at Maples, Alberta.

Mr. and Mrs. Les Christensen were week-end guests at the home of Mr. Christensen's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Christensen.

Candid Comment

We were interested in reading a letter to one of our local merchants sent out by one of the large wholesale houses. This letter suggested that due to the restricted travel caused by the rationing of new cars, tires and gas, home town-folk would do more retail buying in their home-town stores instead of running off to the city shop. It advised the local merchants to band together to cooperate with each other and the local newspaper in showing the public what really fine service they give. This brought the thought to mind that the small town is really in for a change for the good. Will we once more have hitching rails and posts in front of the stores? Will the harness maker one more be one of the busiest and most important men in town? And which one of our garages will be the first one to turn back and become a livery stable. Maybe things won't go that far, but there is no doubt that the small town is in for a business boom.

The cracker barrel is another old-timer we may soon have back with us due to the shortage of cardboard containers. Will it bring back with it, to its honored place in the rear of the general store, the checker game and political discussion so closely associated with it in the past, or will these beloved old customs remain as shades of a saner and more unhurried past.

Speaking of political discussions it looks as if the Aberhart government is in for a long and bitter battle if it adheres to its intention of forcing through the "large unit" idea against almost total opposition by the people affected.

In view of this outspoken opposition, the position of the government is clear. It is duty bound to either drop the whole scheme of the large units, or, to allow the people, either generally, or locally as they are affected, to vote on the question before arbitrarily forcing them into it.

The failure of the government to act in this manner; that is, giving the people a voice in their own affairs, can mean only two things. Either the government realizes it has embarked upon a project which fails to meet the approval of the people and is afraid to turn back for fear of loss of prestige or face, or, it is purely and simply a scheme to perpetuate itself in power by wresting control of more and more authority, enabling them to further raise taxes, and to place in key positions more and more underlings of the "party machine" who will be loyal to the "powers that be" when election time comes round again.

"Offensive" is the war cry now. Never in the history of this war has the time been more opportune for an offensive. Our apparent strategy of defence by making a stand and waiting for an attack on our home grounds has been a failure. Maybe there is something to those two old maxims: "Attack is the best method of defense" and "The victor is the one who gets there fastest with the mostest men".

CARD OF THANKS

Charge Accounts

The admirable Chinese have an ultra-admirable New Year custom. They pay off all their old debts before entering on the New Year. Something of this custom is being introduced into Canada by the Wartime Prices and Trade Board. All "charge accounts" due on the last day of January, 1942, must be liquidated by the following February 10—and so on through the succeeding months. If the customer with a charge account does not pay off his indebtedness within ten days after the expiration of each month, then under the War Measures Act, the seller is prohibited from extending further credit to the defaulting debtor.

Where it is not possible for the debtor to pay off the whole of his arrears of indebtedness by February 10, he may continue to have credit extended to him by paying in cash one-third of his overdue indebtedness, and discharge the balance in monthly payments not to exceed 12 in number.

National Sacrifice

The new order issued by the Wartime Prices and Credit Board may cause a little inconvenience to some tardy payers, but it is all part of the national sacrifice in marshalling the resources of Canada to beat the Hun. Aimed at making liquidation of debts as easy as possible, it will prove a boon to wholesaler, manufacturer and retailer alike. It will make cash settlements easier for them, and reduce the risk of bad debts. In the end it will benefit the purchasing public, too, for bad debts and interest on tardy accounts in the end are usually charged against the whole body of consumers.

Introduced as a war measure, Order 75 of the board, restricting consumer credit and enforcing prompt, cash settlements, will have a wholesale effect upon the internal trade of Canada.

style. If the war has reached the stage where conscription of manpower for overseas service is now unavoidable for this country, then conscription of wealth or resources is necessary.

How can it be a "total war effort" without such a "total" conscription of human and material resources? How can there be a balanced and fairly distributed share of responsibility for all without a parallel form of conscription in all directions for all inhabitants, young or old, man or woman, rich or poor, each in accordance with his or her ability to fit into the "total war" machine of the country? Why should one Canadian merely be concerned mainly about lowering of his standard of luxury, including problems about new furniture, new cars, vacations, slight food inconveniences, and so forth, while another Canadian is fighting for his life? "Total war" means simply a "total conscription of all human and material resources with justice to all inhabitants so that everyone should have enough to eat, a place to live in, some clothes on the back. This is the policy in all countries engaged in "total war" in modern style.

For weeks and weeks, the question of conscription of manpower for overseas has been debated in and out of Parliament with considerable heat. It is properly argued with common sense, that a policy of "total war" cannot tolerate any implied or expressed limitation. Undoubtedly, this expresses the wishes and sentiments of the masses in this country. But it is peculiar that at the same time conscription of wealth or resources is not wanted at the moment. Indeed, the representatives of the people of Canada have sometimes come forth strongly against any immediate full conscription of wealth or resources, though many of them favour immediate full conscription of manpower for overseas.

This, of course, is an obvious inconsistency. Nevertheless, it is clear that there is no general agreement along Parliament Hill as to the true meaning of a "total war effort" in the case of Canada. There are different interpretations of "total war" requirements in the case of this country. But there are many well-informed persons in the nation's capital who hold that sooner or later there will be no possibility for the man-in-the-street to expect a "total war effort" in modern style to include full conscription of manpower and to exclude full conscription of wealth or resources. When this will happen will be determined by events or circumstances of war. In fact, Premier Mackenzie King himself has already dropped a hint on this point when during a speech in the House of Commons he remarked that if voluntary loans of wealth to the Government should ever fail, then wealth would be conscripted. "And it will be exactly the same thing in the raising of men," he added.

Furthermore, it can be reported that the war expenditures are mounting steadily and they are reaching stupendous figures. Although the last Victory Loan campaign was a genuine success in every manner and the people of Canada have already loaned to the Government for war purposes in this war over two billion dollars, yet this is not enough, surprising as this statement may seem to the man-in-the-street. Since last November alone the war costs have involved an expenditure of about $125 a month for every head of population and this figure is raising steadily. Indeed, it is expected in Ottawa that about sixty per cent of the total national income in this fiscal year may be used for war purposes in direct or indirect manner.

In other words, while phrasemongers may use various modes of expression in or out of Parliament in discussing "total war" in the case of Canada, yet there is no agreement in general about the true meaning of a "total war effort" and in line with the circumstances of this country in this struggle, though there is not the slightest doubt about Parliament Hill that the danger is so great that under no circumstances will the government hesitate even a moment to conscript fully and immediately all wealth or resources in the land if and when conditions shall warrant such a drastic action in this war. Canada is willing to pay the price for victory regardless how great the bill may be or what sacrifices may be entailed. (Reproduction Prohibited, 1942, Educational Features Syndicate.)

Farmers and Maximum Price Regulations

All of us are now subject to regulations which would have seemed impossible three years ago. Undoubtedly we shall be required to conform to many more; and who will complain?

It is quite a job keeping posted on regulations affecting business transactions, and many farmers must be uncertain as to their own responsibilities when selling their own produce or buying from others.

Farmers should know that transactions between primary producers of agricultural products, involving their own produce, are exempt from price ceiling regulations of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board. Order No. 102 defines these exemptions and, in part, reads as follows:

"1 (a) sales, exchanges, or barter of hay, grain, seed, seed potatoes, onion bulbs, farm implements or repair parts, machinery or repair parts, sacks, fencing, fence posts, milk cans, stocklings, nursery stock, cordwood, fertilizers, bees, bee supplies, livestock, meats, poultry, poultry products, farm-made dairy products, wool, hides and other agricultural products and supplies;

"1 (b) custom-milling, seed cleaning and other agricultural services."

The above provisions, however, do not apply to sales, exchanges or barter made for purposes of resale. All resales of products or articles are subject to maximum price regulations.

With the world conflagration spreading rapidly its spectacular and tentacular actions so that the flames of actual warfare are now almost reaching the shores of Canada, this non-partisan observer can report an astonishing story to the man-in-the-street of what is going on behind the scenes in the nation's capital as the government's staunch supporters and severe critics in and out of Parliament slash at one another without mercy in sharp verbal duels which are really being carried on to determine whether the Government is or not waging a "total war effort" in its true meaning and in view of the circumstances.

It is pointed out along Parliament Hill that it is no longer a war in which Canada is engaged but where the actual fighting is being waged thousands of miles away in Europe, in Africa, in Asia, or elsewhere. Now, the actual fighting is moving close to this continent and to the shores of this country. It is definitely a "total war" and a different war from all others in which Canada has been engaged in the past.

But what is a "total war effort" at this time in the case of Canada? In order to answer this principal question of the day, it must be stressed that final victory may not be possible without such a proper "total war effort". Since this comparatively young nation is passing through now its worst crisis in its history, it is not only not the proper time to consider pride, prejudice, and formality but the cold facts must be faced straightforwardly in their immediate and real influences. Therefore, it should be clear to the man-in-the-street throughout Canada that a "total war" cannot be won without a "total war effort" of the kind waged in modern style.

Of course, it is generally acknowledged that such a "total war effort" is an inescapable obligation on the part of the people of Canada and the man-in-the-street knows that there is obviously no intention in this country to avoid such a maximum contribution to the whole cause of the democracies or United Nations pact of which Canada is a signatory. However, the most fiery advocates of such a "total war effort" in this country demand only one main point, and that is that the Government should establish full conscription of manpower for overseas service so that Canada may have a large standing army ready to serve anywhere in the world at any time. Without this accomplishment, they insist that Canada cannot be said to be waging a "total war effort". But there is another point. They do not want to think or talk about full conscription of wealth or resources which is possible an essential qualification for "total war" in modern
